New Report in CIA Death

New York

A former Central Intelligence Agency employee said yesterday he believed that a scientist who jumped from a Manhattan hotel window 22 years ago had knowingly participated in a CIA experiment with LSD before his death.

The statement by R. L. Lashbrook, 47, a former CIA employee, appeared in a confidential report to the House Select Committee on Assassinations, which is investigating the death of Dr. S. Gottlieb.

Describing the death of Gottlieb, Lashbrook said that he had been told by a CIA official that Gottlieb had been given LSD before his death. Lashbrook said that he had been told that Gottlieb had been given LSD before his death.
